1. Zeneggen in brief

Zeneggen – the village

Zeneggen is located in the German-speaking part of the canton of Valais (Upper Valais) on a sunny vantage point above the Rhone and Visper valleys at the foot of the Moosalp, surrounded by an impressive high mountain landscape. To the north, it borders directly on the Jungfrau-Aletsch-Bietschhorn UNESCO World Heritage Site. To the south, it borders on the highest peaks of the Valais Alps.

The municipal area covers an area of just under 8 km<sup>2</sup> and stretches from the banks of the Vispa at an altitude of approx. 670 m to an altitude of 1720 m (west of the Diebja foothills). The municipality, which is a typical scattered settlement, consists of the hamlets of Alt Zeneggen, Egga, Esch, Trolera, Sisetsch, Ze Stadlu, Unner dum Biel, Widum, Wiecherried and Gstei, all of which are located high up on the mountain above the valley floor. Zeneggen's neighbouring municipalities are Visp to the north, Visperterminen to the east, Stalden to the south, Törbel to the south-west, Bürchen to the west and Raron to the north-west.

Zeneggen looks back on an impressive history dating back to the Bronze Age. The first traces of early Bronze Age settlements can be found near the hamlet of Sisetsch (1900–1600 BC), including cup stones, whose exact meaning remains a mystery to this day. In the Middle Bronze Age (around 1250 BC), there was a hilltop settlement on the Kasteltschuggen that specialised in cattle breeding. Relics such as dry stone walls and bronze objects are preserved in the Cantonal Museum in Sion. Between 450 BC and 100 AD, a Celtic settlement was established with graves rich in bronze and pottery finds.

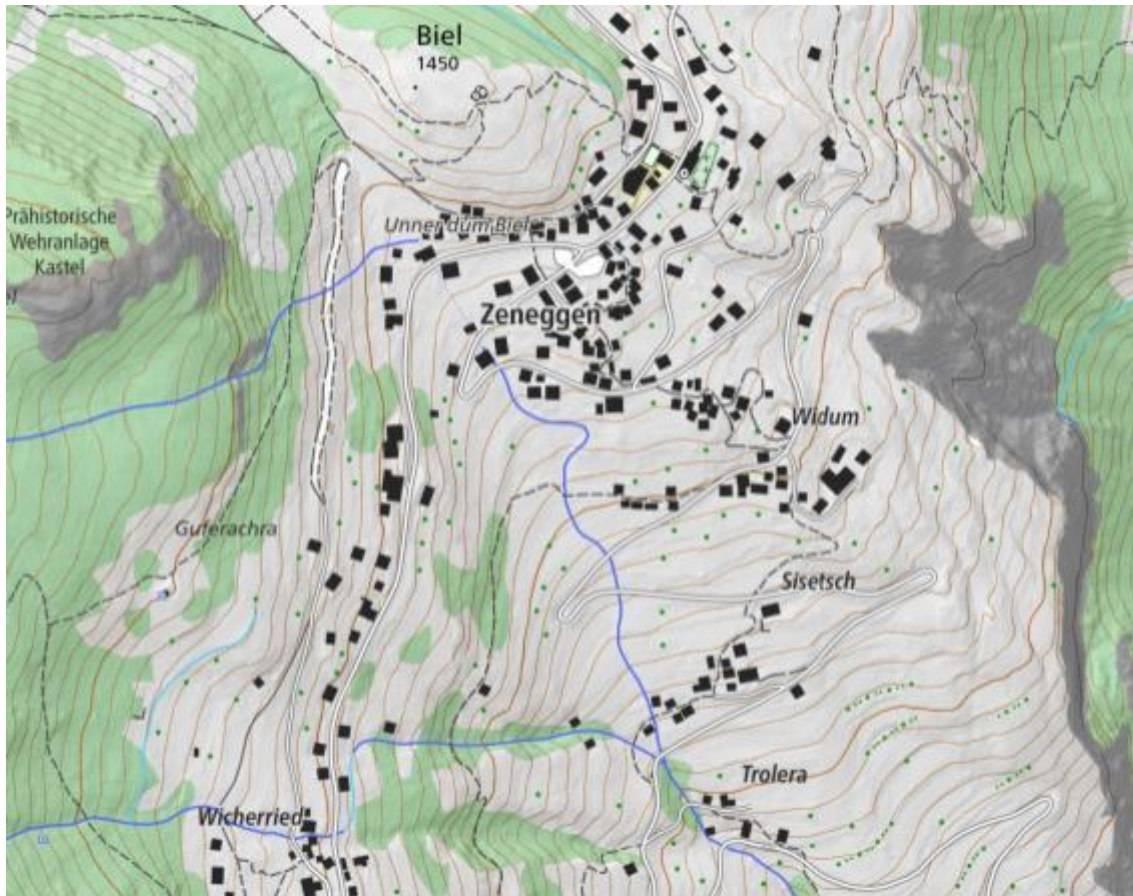

The first written mention of Zeneggen dates back to 1150, when it concerned the purchase of water from the Jungbach stream – an issue that occupied the community for centuries. From the 16th century onwards, a mixed economy of cattle breeding, agriculture and viticulture developed. Crafts such as lime processing and blacksmithing were also important.

Zeneggen's ecclesiastical history began with the construction of the first chapel in 1608. The present parish church was built between 1877 and 1881 and has been renovated several times since then. In the 20th century, the village experienced milestones such as electrification (1927), road construction (1931–1934) and the expansion of the drinking water supply (1947–1970). Recent developments such as the construction of the new "Steinachra" residential quarter (2023–2024) underscore Zeneggen's continuous development.

This unique combination of historical depth, living tradition and modern infrastructure makes Zeneggen a special place to live and work.

Children and young people who play music improve their social behaviour, become more emotionally sensitive and learn solidarity and team spirit. Music helps them to find new perspectives and develop their personality.
